Books by Arnold Bennett

Distinctly Arnold Bennett is the novelist of the hour. The unusual worth of his greatest success, THE OLD WIVES' TALE, has brought into prominence and proper recognition the genius of a really great fiction-writer. Versatile, keen, humorous in the truest sense, Arnold Bennett takes his place in the forefront of present-day writers.

Now Ready NOVELS

HELEN WITH THE HIGH HAND: An Idyllic Diversion. 12mo. Cloth, Net $1.20

"Arnold Bennett's light comedy vein has produced nothing more masterly than this account of two obstinacies; that of a hard, shrewd, narrow, self-satisfied, miserly old "Five Towns" man, and that of an educated, capable, ornamental, eminently sensible, and femininely unscrupulous woman of his own blood."—The Outlook.

ANNA OF THE FIVE TOWNS: 12mo. Cloth, Net $1.20

"The plot of "Anna of the Five Towns" is laid in the same scene as that of "The Old Wives' Tale."

LEONORA: The Tragedy of a Commonplace Life. 12mo. Cloth, Net $1.20

A GREAT MAN: The Story of a Literary Career. 12mo. Cloth, Net $1.20

THE OLD WIVES' TALE: A Novel of Life. 12mo. Cloth, Net $1.50

"There is no novel of recent years that I would rank as equal to it."—Sir W. Robertson Nicoll in The British Weekly.

The Married Life of the Frederic Carrolls

"YOU MEAN YOU'RE AFRAID OF ME."

IT tells amusingly of a girl's struggle to be an "old-fashioned wife" in "new-fashioned" circumstances, one of which is "the other woman," and how a "mere marriage" developed into a real union. Illustrated, $1.50

"Heretofore known to the reading public by reason of lively short stories and tales of college life, Jesse Lynch Williams, in 'The Married Life of the Frederic Carrolls,' presents ample and excellent reasons and titles for admission to the small and select guild of popular American novelists. The author's story of the Carrolls opens up new vistas and presages a new literary fashion that will never lack admirers."—The Philadelphia North American.

The following verses were written by FRANKLIN P. ADAMS for the New York Mail, upon his examining the first one volume complete edition of Field's poems ever published.

The Poems of Eugene Field

(SOMEWHAT IN THE FIELDIAN MANNER)

No gold-reguerdoned poet I to puff a book for pelf,
For even I am forced to buy the books I praise myself,
Albeit there be those that think that when I boost a tome
Its publisher invites me in to make myself at home.
Could you but see the monthly bills that stare me in the face,
You readily would see that such is not the happy case;
Yet once again I toot the horn, again the pen I wield
To advertise the Poetry of Eugene Field.

* * * * *

Exalted be the memory of him with whom we've smiled,
But blessed thrice the name of him that sang a little child.
Let those who will declare the Gentle Poet insincere—
I doubt it, like the Carpenter, and check a rising tear.
The which is why I celebrate that poet and his rhyme
And hint it were a goodly gift to give at Christmas time—
Two dollars net, CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS—why should it be concealed?
Go, buy that brimming volume by Eugene Field!

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO inadvertently wrote the price of Addison W. Moore's "Pragmatism and Its Critics" $1.61 instead of $1.36, postpaid, in their copy for their advertisement last week.

In view of the general practice of affixing non-postage "Christmas" stamps or other adhesive charity stamps or labels to articles mailed during the Christmas season, the Post-Office Department calls attention to the fact that many countries, among them Germany, Austria and Great Britain, refuse to admit to their mails articles bearing such stamps or labels, especially if they resemble regular postage stamps, unless these stamps are affixed to the reverse and not to the address side.

In order to meet the holiday demands for their new fall books, Little, Brown & Company have found it necessary to order new printings of the following titles: "Sicily in Shadow and in Sun," by Maud Howe; "Romantic Days in Old Boston," by Mary Caroline Crawford; "The Optimist's Good Night," by Florence Hobart Perin; "A Lawyer's Recollections in and Out of Court," by George A. Torrey; "Old Mother West Wind," by Thornton W. Burgess; and "A Prairie Rose," by Bertha E. Bush.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have exhausted a large edition of "The Married Life of the Frederic Carrolls," in which Jesse Lynch Williams tells so amusingly the story of the girl trying to be "an old-fashioned wife" in "new-fashioned circumstances." In calling attention to their new one-volume edition of "The Poems of Eugene Field" in their advertisement this week, they quote the very clever poem written by Franklin P. Adams for the New York Mail upon examining Eugene Field's poems for the first time put in one volume. They have also just brought out in this country a new and beautiful edition of Robert Louis Stevenson's "Prayers Written at Vailima"—each prayer illuminated in missal style by Alberto Sangorski, and the whole reproduced in colors upon ivory-tinted paper. The volume forms an admirable Christmas present.

G. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY are fortunate in having their imprint on "A History of the French Academy," by D. Maclaren Robertson, giving an original record in English from the academy's foundation, exhaustive and adequate treating of the general history, of the history of its vast dictionary, of its membership, whose literary achievement is given the reader in brief biographies in the most compact form possible. It is specially valuable because it shows clearly the relationship between the five great National Academies and the Institute of France. It has been pronounced authoritative, and its fund of information will make it a permanent work of reference in English on its great subject.

GEORGE H. DORAN COMPANY has been fortunate in getting so many of Arnold Bennett's books on his list in time for the gift season. "The Old Wives' Tale: a Novel of Life," achieved for this versatile, keen and humorous writer a great popularity, and all his books are being asked for and read eagerly. This publisher has now ready "Helen with the High Hand: an Idyllic Diversion;" "Anna of the Five Towns;" "A Great Man: the Story of a Literary Career;" and "Leonora: the Tragedy of a commonplace Life." Bennett has also produced some decidedly clever smaller books, among them "How to Live on Twenty-four Hours a Day;" "The Human Machine;" "Literary Taste, and How to Form It;" "Cupid and Common-sense: a Play."

Weekly Record of New Publications

The entry is transcribed from title page when the book is sent by publisher for record. All books sent, unless of slight importance, are given descriptive annotation. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

• Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tl. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., n.s., designate square, oblong, narrow. For books not received sizes are given in Roman numerals, 4°, 8°, etc.

A story of out-of-doors by the author of "Back to Arcady." With every returning summer the "wanderlust" grips Père Jacot and he lays aside his robes to travel the pleasant river-road. One smiles at the old man's fancies and like him learns to love the "little red-headed jade" who eventually marries the young country doctor.

Allen, Ja. Lane. The doctor's Christmas Eve. N. Y., Macmillan, 1910. c. 11+304 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The second of the trilogy of stories, begun with "The bride of the mistletoe," see "Weekly Record." P. W., July 3, 1909, [1953.] The doctor was the nearest neighbor of the couple whose story was told in the first book. He is a very learned physician who prefers to stay in his Kentucky home to getting among the world's physicians. He falls in love at first sight with his nearest friend's wife. Later he marries, but he and his wife drift apart. Their children go to spend Christmas with the old friends and the description of the winter journey is graphic. The doctor and his boy are close friends and the boy is outspoken about the rift he discovers in the family lute. The two women of the story live up to high ideals. Very introspective.

Betham-Edwards, Matilda. Unfrequented France; by river, mead and town; il. by original and copyright photographs. N. Y., Stokes, [1910.] 10+204 p. O. cl., $3 net.

The author is Officer de l'Instruction Publique de France and knows the country in all its odd places. Copious extracts have been made from her "Holidays in Eastern France" and "The roof of France," both of which are out of print. The long and wide apart journeys here put together were not made at a stretch; they cover many years, but the various stages have been linked "so as to make of the zigzag-geries a sequent and easily followed round." Nearly thirty-five years of experience and study have gone into this book. The changes that have taken place in the France of her day are forcibly brought before the reader.

Bible. Old Testament. The Old Testament narrative separated out, set in connected order and ed. by Alfr. Dwight Sheffield. Bost., Houghton Mifflin, 1910. c. 21+510 p. D. cl., $1.50 net.

There is a growing feeling that the Bible, especially the Old Testament, should be studied as literature in the schools. Indeed the college entrance requirements board has recently included among the prescribed works the narrative portions of the Old Testament. To meet this requirement a volume has been prepared by Arthur B. Sheffield, formerly of the editorial staff of "Webster's International Dictionary." The editor has followed in the main the language of the King James version and has separated out and set in connected order the narrative portions of the Old Testament with some foot-notes. An interesting feature of the book is the illustrations, many of which reveal the results of recent excavations.

Bible. New Testament. Gospels. Walks and words of Jesus; a paragraph harmony

- of the four Gospels, originally comp. by Rev. M. N. Olmsted. Rev. ed., to which is added "New sayings of Jesus." Brookline, Mass., G. M. McClintock, 1910. c. 11-415 p. 12°, cl., $1.50.
- Bible. New Testament. The New Testament in the revised version of 1881, with fuller references; ed. by A. W. Greenup and J. H. Moulton. N. Y., Oxford Univ. Press, 1910. 8°, cl., $3; limp mor., $4.50; Oxford India pap, ed., $7.50.
- Björnson, Björnstjerne. Sigurd Slembe; a dramatic trilogy; tr. from the Norwegian by W. Morton Payne. [New ed.] Chic., C. H. Seigel & Co., 358 Dearborn St., 1910. c. '88. 8+323 p. O. cl., $1.50 net. First published in 1888 by Houghton Mifflin Co.
- Black, S. C.; D.D. Plain answers to religious questions modern men are asking; with an introd. by Howard Agnew Johnston. Phil., Presbyterian Board of Pub., 1910. c. 203 p. por. D. cl., 75 c. Author is pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Boulder, Colorado; instructor in Hebrew, University of Chicago. Having sought in the writings of others for plain answers to honest questions that trouble people seeking religion, he has needed to write many himself and these form the book. Theological intricacies have been studiously avoided and the answers are not intended to be exhaustive but merely informing and helpful.
- Blake, Emily Calvin. The great moments in a woman's life. Chic., Forbes & Co., 1910. c. 88 p. D. cl., 75 c. By the author of "Engaged girl sketches." Six moments: Sixteen and in love; Those days when she lives in a fabric of dreams; When the first realities creep into her life; When as a young mother she sets the pace; When she hears the first flutter of the wings; The first flitting from the home nest.
- Bland, J.; Otway Percy, and Backhouse, E. China under the Empress Dowager; being the history of the life and times of Tzu Hsi, compiled from state papers and the private diary of the controller of her household. Phil., Lippincott, 1910. 15+525 p. il. map, Q. cl., $4 net. The volume begins with an introductory history of the Yehonala family, and covers the stirring incidents and happenings during Tzu Hsi's eventful reign from her first regency to her death. This makes an absorbing story, but woven into it is a human document that is unique in the annals of modern history. This is the intimate diary of Ching Shan, for many years the Controller of the Empress's household, a kinsman of the imperial family and the friend and confidant of the Empress Dowager herself. During the Boxer war, after the entry of the allies into Peking, Ching Shan was murdered by his son, and his diary was just rescued in time to save it from being burned by a party of Sikhs. The diary is a full and confidential record of the palace events during the last eight months of the writer's life, and besides throwing much light on the character and acts of "the Old Buddha," as the Empress was familiarly called by the Court, it contains a pathetic record of the old man's perplexities and troubles. Mr. Bland was for years in the Chinese Government service under Sir Robert Hart.
- Book (The) of Cupid; being an anthology from the English poets; with 23 il. by the Lady Hylton, and an introd. by H. Newbolt. N. Y., Stokes, [1910.] 13+179 p. D. cl., $1 net. An anthology of poetry dealing with Cupid. Many of the verses are several hundred years old and are charmingly quaint. The illustrations add much to the attractiveness of the volume. Index to poets. Index to first lines.

- Busbey, Katharine G. Home life in America; with 12 illustrations. N. Y., Macmillan, 1910. 10+410 p. D. cl., $2 net. The author, though an American, wrote this study of American customs and manners primarily for an English public. She takes the English view of American extravagance, of the educated American woman doing her own housework, of the great freedom accorded to growing children, etc. Some of the book must have been written for some time, for a few of the statements made are not quite up-to-date.

Chandler, Izora Cecilia. Little comrade; il. by Alice Barber Stephens. Buffalo, N. Y., Berger Pub. Co., [265 Norwood Ave.,] 1910. c. 373 p. D. cl., $1.25 net.

This is a story set down by a little boy in diary form, with short sentences and easy words. The boy remembers his father, a soldier, who called the lad "Little Comrade." But the boy had to go and live with his grandfather and his Aunt Edith. There was trouble in the family. The father died. The mother was thought to have drowned, and at any rate had disappeared, and Aunt Edith was desperately antagonistic to her and was constantly setting the boy against the memory of his mother. The little boy endured it as well as he could, but it was a sore trial to him at times, and he was often on the point of giving up. The right was vindicated at last, the mother came into her own, and Aunt Edith, while not punished as she deserved, got out of the charmed circle of the little boy's good fellowship and friends.

Christen, Sydney Mary Thompson, [Mrs. Rodolphe Christen.] Rodolphe Christen; the story of an artist's life, by his wife. N. Y., Longmans, Green, 1910. 18+264 p. col. pls. pors. O. cl., $7 net.

A loving tribute to the memory of this Swiss landscape painter. He was born at St. Imiez, Canton Berne, on April 26, 1859. He was one of thirteen children. His father, a stern shoemaker, was so severe with his boys that Rudolphe ran away and went to work to learn the trade of sketching on watch covers. His life was very happy until he succumbed in 1906 to malignant throat trouble. The descriptions of his wanderings for subjects for his pictures are full of color and life.

Many of the most historic and romantic countries are situated around the Mediterranean. They have furnished much of our folk-lore and customs. This book follows the course of a complete cruise around the Mediterranean from the Azores Islands through the Strait of Gibraltar, visiting southern Spain and France, the Riviera, southern Italy, Sicily and the islands of the inland sea, Morocco, Tunis and the inland Moorish towns in Northern Africa, Greece, Constantinople, Asia Minor, Palestine and Egypt. Pertinent bits of history are deftly woven into this narrative of travel, and one feels almost as keen a pleasure in rambling leisurely through its pages as does the luxurious tourist of private yacht, caravan or dahabiyeh on the Nile. The illustrations are numerous and good. Index.

Flaubert, Gustave. The temptation of St. Anthony; tr. by Lafcadio Hearn. N. Y., Alice Harriman, 1910. c. 19+262 p. D. cl., $1.25.

An introduction by Elizabeth Bisland, the sympathetic biographer of Hearn, tells us that he began translating "The temptation" between 1875 and 1876, just after the original had appeared in 1874. This has recently been discovered among his papers. St. Anthony plunges into every heresy and philosophy, sees the orgies, the flagellations, the self mutilations, the battles and furies of the sects, each convinced it has answered the great questions why? whence? whither? St. Anthony's experiences are reproduced in the scientific and spiritual researches of the present day.

Grierson, Eliz. W. The Scottish fairy book; with 100 il. by Morris Meredith Williams. N. Y., Stokes, [1910.] 9-13+382 p. O. cl., $1.50 net.

A representative collection from the different classes of Scottish folk-lore, taking generally the stories least known in the hope that some may be new to the children of this generation. The writer tells the tales in her own words, but is indebted for the originals to Campbell's "Popular tales of the Western Highlands," "Leyden's Poems," "Hogg's Poems," Scott's "Border minstrelsy," etc. Fairies, bogies, brownies, witches and kelpies are again made real to a younger generation.

Grimshaw, Rob. The engine runner's catechism; a work containing correct answers to direct questions on how to erect, adjust, and run the principal steam engines used in the United States; being a sequel to the author's "Steam engine catechism." 7th ed. Grissom, Irene Welch. The superintendent. N. Y., Alice Harriman, 1910. c. 228 p. D. cl., $1.35 net.

A tale of the sawmill country in the western part of the state of Washington. The new superintendent succeeded the old-type superintendent, who cursed the men from morning to night. Many men from many nations formed his army of workmen—Americans, Italians, Greeks, Poles, Austrians, Swedes, Finns, Norwegians, Danes, here and there a Mexican and occasionally an East Indian. The superintendent ruled them wisely, justly and kindly, and the story tells how he got more work out of them than anyone had done before.

Griswold, Grace. Love and the year and other poems. N. Y., Duffield, 1910. c. 97 p. D. bds., 60 c. net.

Hadden, J. Cuthbert. Favorite operas from Mozart to Mascagni; with 24 drawings in colour by Byam Shaw. N. Y., Stokes, [1910.] 15+287 p. O. cl., $2.25.

The author of "Operas of Wagner" has now made a selection from the operas that are constantly being presented, or that have recently been revised and has presented for the musical amateur what the particular opera being staged is "all about." A short biographical account of the composer is given in each case. Although running from Mozart to Mascagni there is no attempt made at historical continuity. Forty-seven operas are dealt with.

Hall, Fs. Jos., D.D. Dogmatic theology. In 10 v. v. 4, The Trinity. N. Y., Longmans, Green, 1910. c. 19+316 p. D. cl., $1.60 net.

The previous volumes were: vol. 1, "The introduction," published in 1907; vol. 2, "Authority, ecclesiastical and biblical," 1908; vol. 3, "The being and attributes of God." It is hoped the remaining six volumes will be issued at intervals of from 12 to 18 months. The author explains that Christianity now lays one-sided emphasis upon purely humanitarian ideas and ideals and relegates the doctrine of the Trinity to the limbo of non-significant speculation having no bearing on practical religion and duty. He proves the doctrine of the Trinity the most fundamental and significant of Christian doctrines.

All these letters were written from Japan to correspondents living in Japan. They describe his travels, retail the touching or amusing incidents of the life about him, or discuss the books recently read; they analyze the condition of public affairs (some of his political predictions have been curiously verified), the trend of education, the characters of his associates, little vignettes of men he had known sketched in a few lines of subtle and conclusive portraiture. Reminiscence of past impressions and experiences, philosophic speculation, daring psychological conjecture were poured out according to his mood without stint or haste—as only the born letter-writer can find the energy to do. These two journeys in Spain were taken, the first in 1802-05, the second in 1808-09. They were omitted from the two volumes published November 14. The narrative has been shortened and dwells specially on those incidents which bear on the character and customs of the Spaniard. The second portion deals almost exclusively with the incidents of the Peninsular War.

Hough, Emerson. The singing mouse stories; with decorations by Mayo Bunker. Indianapolis, Bobbs-Merrill, [1910.] c. 235 p. S. cl., $1.

The author of "54-40 or fight" has written here a number of phantasies. They are the dreams that the "singing mouse" sings to him when he is all alone in his shabby room before a dying fire, late at night, and they tell of glorious country, true friends, brave men, and power and strength to work with the work ready to hand, and of where there is no worry.

Eliza Carter, a middle-aged woman, accepts a position as housekeeper with old Mr. Mader and his son Otis in Bainbridge, Mass. The very first night she is with them Mr. Mader is killed by a shot fired through the living-room window while the housekeeper is alone with the old man. Suspicion falls on no less than four people, the son being at last tried and convicted of the murder. Miss Carter discovers the real perpetrator of the deed and the son is cleared in a surprising manner.

This essay was originally written in 1902 as a thesis for the Rabbinical degree of the Hebrew College of Cincinnati. It aims to introduce the American Jewish public to the Hebrew literature of the 19th century. Leon Gordon was born December 7, 1830. He aimed chiefly at purifying Judaism, at removing the mass of superstitious practices that clogged the development of Russian Jews along the line of material and intellectual progress. His attitude toward the Rabbis was one of bitter antagonism. He died October, 1892. Bibliography (2 p.).

Mary Ellen's lover did not come to be married after the bridal party had waited until all hope was abandoned. This touched Mary Ellen's mind. After a few years she began to pray for a baby, and a doll sent by mistake to her little niece made her think her prayer was answered. After some time the doll was injured and her friends persuaded Mary Ellen it was dead and they gave it Christian burial. At the funeral the poor soul went to her rest. The doctor, the minister and the neighbors are wonderfully pictured in their kind plans to help Mary Ellen.

The Publishers' Weekly

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT

December 17, 1910

The editor is not responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

Publishers should send books promptly for weekly record and descriptive annotation, if possible in advance of publication. The Record of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

POSTAL PROGRESS.

POSTAL progress is in the air, and indeed the air is cleared for it by the remarkable and business-like showing which the Postmaster-General's report makes for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1910. The revenues are $224,128,657, as against $203,562,383, and the expenditures $229,977,224, as against $221,004,102 in 1908-09—thus the deficit of $17,441,719 is cut to $5,848,567. This is owing not only to the great increase of revenue, but also to the remarkable economy which the Postmaster-General, largely by his personal exertion, has accomplished, despite an increase of over 1500 in the number of post offices and 515 new rural free delivery routes, and increases of over $3,000,000 in salaries and wages. Mr. Hitchcock has shown what can be done by a real Director of Posts, as provided for in the proposed reorganization bill, and he is entitled to hearty congratulations.

The Postmaster-General has experienced a change of heart as to second-class matter, and specifically disclaims the present intention to increase the rate generally, but unfortunately he has committed the President as well as himself to the petty detail of differentiating the rate by advocating a higher charge for advertising than for reading matter with respect to magazines only. This suggestion, made in the Penrose Commission report, but afterward abandoned, is likely to prove futile and fruitless, for it will find little favor with Congress, the publishers or the public. It originated in some measure, though this is probably unknown to the President and possibly to the Postmaster-General, in the desire of Congress to get even with the muck-raking magazines, but it will hit such periodicals as the Century, the Review of Reviews and the Outlook as hard as the cheap magazines; and of course this revenge is not a present motive. The plan would yield little revenue, and would be as cumbersome and complicated to the department as to publishers. It will die a natural death.

The Postmaster-General has committed the administration to the development of a parcels post on rural free delivery routes, and he adopts the arguments which have been made to him for the "full wagon," which he estimates would yield approximately five million dollars additional revenue, without additional expenditure, thus wiping out the deficit which even without fresh legislation will probably be offset by continuing increase of revenue and the further result of Mr. Hitchcock's economies. Possibly a four-cent instead of a five-cent initial charge would be more in consonance with other postal rates. This would certainly be the first step towards a general parcels post, and it is to be regretted that the Postmaster-General does not yet favor a consolidation of third and fourth class matter, or even a reduction of the domestic rate to the foreign rate of twelve cents a pound on merchandise.

The Postmaster-General proposes a return to an official stamp, to limit and replace the franking privilege. This plan, though abandoned after the first experiment, would put the accounts of the department in a more business-like shape and would develop a third factor in turning the seeming deficit of the department into a surplus, thus giving postal progress a positive basis which could not be disputed. In making the rather ridiculous suggestion that a higher rate on magazine advertising might permit the reduction of first-class postage to one cent an ounce, the Postmaster-General would seem to be less wise than politic, if in fact there is any substantial public sentiment evident in its favor. This is of course an ultimate aim of postal progress, but to adopt it now would give away the largest single asset of the department, and by involving a possible immediate reduction of revenue exceeding $30,000,000, jeopardize postal progress in every direction. The wiser proposition might be to increase the two-cent limit to four ounces, thus providing a comprehensive unit of rate.

THE short session has often been made fruitful of important measures of a non-partisan character, especially under an impending change of party control. The Republicans cannot wisely leave to the Democrats, nor can the Democrats wisely refuse to co-operate in, the passage of bills evidently in the general interest, which do not require long drawn out debate. It should therefore be possible to pass at this session three if not four postal measures to which there would be no public opposition.

(1) The reorganization bill providing for a Director of Posts, etc., with the omission of the postal court and of the complex and detailed provisions as to bookkeeping and classification, which should be left to the department.

(2) A rural parcels post, as proposed by the Postmaster-General, possibly with the modification of a four-cent instead of a five-cent initial rate, as more compatible with general postal rates.

(3) A first step toward a general parcels post, preferably by the consolidation of third and fourth class matter within the present limits of weight as advocated by so many Postmasters-General, or at least the lowering of the domestic charge on merchandise to the foreign merchandise rate of twelve cents a pound, and with authority to the Postmaster-General to make specified extensions as to weight limits, possibly with graded charges on the zone system used in Germany and as respects freight by our own railroads.

(4) It would be to the large advantage of Congressmen as well as of the department if a measure, making all postmasterships business and not political offices, could be passed, but this would involve too much debate and opposition to make it practicable at this session.

At least the indicated steps in postal progress would seem to be possible as well as desirable, under skillful leadership, as products of the Sixty-first Congress, leaving plenty for the Sixty-second Congress to do.

THE notice reprinted elsewhere in this issue of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY of the forthcoming sale of the library of Robert Hoe marks an important epoch in the history of New York City as a world market for rare books.

As lately as last spring the following paragraph was printed in the preface to a catalogue issued by a well-known New York dealer: "In another ten years or less American collectors will find they will have to compete strongly in this market with English buyers. This is good news for the present owners of rare books, for the buyers of to-day and their heirs."

The conservative limit of ten years has been shortened to about as many months. We think the executors of the Hoe estate may be safely congratulated upon their wisdom in selecting New York City as the market for the property. We may also congratulate the Anderson Auction Company for their energy and ability in securing the sale.

An illustration of the folly, to say nothing more of illegal combinations, is that the existence of the unscrupulous combination in the English auction rooms, known as the "Knock-out," had a great deal to do with the refusal of the executors to send the books abroad. In this country no such organized band exists, and the auction business, both upon the part of buyer and auctioneer, is conducted upon a high plane.

HOLIDAY BOOK PUBLISHING.

A GRATIFYING feature of the book publishing season, says the Springfield Republican, as surveyed in part in the Republican's special book number, last Saturday, is the larger proportion of books of substantial value offered, and the small proportion of catchpenny publications put forth to meet the uncritical holiday demand. That the Christmas trade has been a demoralizing influence many publishers have been ready to grant. It is pleasanter as well as wholesomer to meet a sincere need than to cater to caprice, and the holiday trade has always been capricious. It has in large part consisted of selling books to people who do not want them, and buy them to give to some one else who it is hoped may be pleased. Now the spirit of giving is admirable, and what can be a safer or pleasanter gift than an attractive book? Yet at Christmas there are many friends to be supplied, and shopping consumes at the best much time. Few can appraise closely the real value of every present they bestow. Something must be left to chance, and it is inevitable that multitudes of books have to be bought by snap judgment, on the strength of their looks. What has a gay, cheerful, fresh appearance is apt to go off well, and it must sometimes have seemed to a conscientious publisher that his holiday business was not very different from that of the astute trader who swaps pretty glass beads for gold and ivory.

But the publishers are to be given credit for trying steadily to bring up the quality of their wares, and to put stuff of real value inside of the most lavish red-and-gilt exterior. It is hopeless to try to make every book published a work of genius—there are not enough geniuses to go around. But there is a great difference between good honest work, that tries to be helpful, instructive and pleasing in a worthy way, and the book that is planned to trick the buyer like a basket of peaches with a false bottom and a layer of artfully selected showy fruit on top. It would be too much to say that the worthless holiday book is extinct, but the showing of the season is distinctly creditable. It is only needful to consider the varied list of important memoirs, historical studies, books of travel, and handsome illustrated editions of standard works, to find books of substantial value well suited for the special demand of the holiday season.

Literature proper, of course, knows nothing of holiday or other seasons, and has little to do with the publishing trade. The poet writes when he is in the mood; the novelist writes nearly all the time. The coming of the occasional book that really counts cannot be predicted, often cannot be discovered till long after the fact. In this sense the current year may seem unimportant for American literature. If a masterpiece has appeared it has escaped reviewers who for all their ill-reputation would give a great deal to find and celebrate an authentic masterpiece. Very likely few of the books appearing now have the faintest chance of immortality, though no one can be sure even of that, for if oblivion blindly scattereth her poppies, no less blindly, it sometimes would seem, does fame strew her laurels. Few in Goldsmith's day could have dreamed that in the twentieth century artists would still be embellishing "The Vicar of Wakefield." It may be that the one important literary fact of 1910 is a birth, or the struggles of some still unknown writer to finish his book and find a publisher for it. Literary history concerns mainly the lives and vicissitudes of authors, and these are obscured in our day by the impersonal publicity of the great and solidly organized publishing trade.

There is the more reason for congratulation that the increased resources and directive ability of publishers are being turned to the manufacture of a standard, honest article, as good as can be provided for the money. The publisher cannot work miracles, he cannot summon a genius any more than a genie to do his bidding. But on the other hand he can maintain a standard, and the standard is in many respects being raised. He can reject trash and whatever hurts morals or spoils taste. He can insist that every book bearing his imprint be a creditable performance in which buyers will not too late be disappointed. He can try to educate the public year by year to appreciate sensible thinking, good writing, artistic typography and binding, and the most meritorious pictures that can be secured. In most of these respects the average is being raised, and specially gratifying has been the improvement, during the past three or four years, in the artistic merit of holiday editions, specially those with elaborate illustrations in color. The glaring effects and the incongruities which marred the earlier experiments in this interesting new field are being gradually eliminated, and the publishers have been finding a new style of typography which matches well with the sumptuous effect of the colored plates. In fact, despite a great deal of crude work which still survives, there is reason to hope for a notable development of artistic book-making in the near future.

PROPOSED SALE OF THE HOE LIBRARY.

It can now be announced positively that the great Robert Hoe library will be dispersed at auction, under the management of the Anderson Auction Company, of New York City. The first sale will take place in February in the company's new and more spacious premises, at the corner of Madison Avenue and Fortieth Street, which are now being made ready for their removal early next year. All American collectors, librarians, and book dealers should be pleased that the executors have decided to dispose of the great library here, instead of sending it abroad. American collectors have been responsible for the high prices of rare books, and there can be no doubt that the keenest competition will be attracted by such a sale. English and Continental collectors will send over representatives, and new high records on great books may be expected.

Mr. Hoe, in his fifty years of book collecting, covered a wide field, and his library, the most valuable private library in the world, includes rare books in almost every department. It will, however, not be sold by departments, but the first portion, to be sold in February, will include a representative selection from the various departments: manuscripts, early-printed books, books in fine bindings, French books, Americana, first editions, etc.

The fifteen volumes of Mr. Hoe's privately printed catalogue enumerate 13,030 titles, forming 20,962 volumes. This does not include the illuminated manuscripts, a very important and extremely valuable section, and the one in which Mr. Hoe took the greatest personal pleasure. The library, we may presume, comprises upwards of fifteen thousand titles, and its value may be estimated at something approximating two millions of dollars.

Commenting on the sale of the Hoe library the Nation adds that no such library has ever been dispersed at auction in recent times. The Sunderland Library, removed from Blenheim Palace, sold by Puttick & Simpson, 1881-1883, comprised 13,858 lots, and brought a total of £65,581 6s. William Beckford's library, sold by Sotheby, Wilkinson & Hodge, in 1882-1883, comprised 9837 lots, and brought a total of £73,551 18s. More recently, Lord Ashburnham's library, sold in 1897-1898 by Sotheby, Wilkinson & Hodge, contained 4075 lots, and brought a total of £62,712 7s. 6d. To this may be added the Ashburnham manuscripts, sold in 1901, 628 lots, bringing £33,217 6s. 6d., making a total for the collection sold at auction of £95,929 14 s. Earlier than this, shortly after death of the Earl of Ashburnham, the British Museum had purchased a portion of the manuscripts (the Stowe collection), paying £45,000 for them. Another portion (from the Libri collection) was purchased by the French government in 1888 for £24,000, and others were sold privately. It has been estimated that altogether something more than £160,000 may have been realized for the entire Ashburnham collection of books and manuscripts, between five and six thousand lots.

But the Hoe collection, with its fifteen or sixteen thousand lots, pales besides the great Richard Heber library, which was sold in thirteen sales in 1834-1837, the catalogues dethe death of the latter to the bookseller, Thomas Osborne, in 1742. For this great library, which contained about 400,000 books and pamphlets, Osborne paid £13,000, which scribing 54,234 lots, and which brought some £65,000. Heber said: "No gentleman can be without three copies of a book, one to show, one for use, and one for borrowers." Mr. Hoe did not go to this extreme, and there are few duplicates in his library, though he did have two copies of the first of all printed books, the Gutenberg Bible. Another great English library which surpassed in number of volumes even the Heber collection was that brought together by Robert Harley and his son Edward Harley, which was sold upon was several thousand pounds less than the cost of binding alone. He issued a catalogue in five octavo volumes, 1743-1745, describing 51,561 lots. This catalogue, prepared in large part by William Oldys, and with an introduction by Samuel Johnson, is one of the most interesting of the old library catalogues. The library included a large number of Caxtons, among them Mr. Hoe's unique perfect copy of the first edition of Malory's "Byrth, Lyf, and Actes of Kyng Arthur" (1485); also many of the early tracts on America, which, when they come up at rare intervals nowadays, bring such high prices. Horace Walpole, in 1758, writing of rare books, said:

"A third sort . . . are things become rare says J. A. Gabel, of the Chehalis Book and Stationery Store, in a recent issue of Gill's Bulletin.

"The object is to get the dime from the

from their insignificance. Of this species was that noble collection of foolish tracts in the Harleian Library, puritanical sermons, party-pamphlets, voyages, etc., which being too stupid to be ever reprinted, grew valuable as they grew scarce.

DISPLAY WINDOWS AS A BEST ASSET.

"HERE is a little figuring that I did the other day for the enlightenment of my landlord, to convince him that I needed windows," hesitating school boy, or the quarter from mother-with-the-basket, or the four-bits from father-in-a-hurry, in exchange for the tablet, or the papeterie, or the loose leaf note book. The chances of doing it on a 100 point basis are about as follows:

"Goods under counter, one chance in a hundred—customer may call for it; goods on shelf, ten chances in a hundred—customer may see and call, or clerk may see and be reminded to suggest; goods on display table, fifty chances in a hundred—will be seen by both customer and clerk and is a suggestion to each; goods in window, one hundred chances in a hundred—goods are already sold and customer has only to come in to order them wrapped up, and unless the store is dirty or the clerk impudent, the money is practically in the till.

"The writer appraises the window space for school supplies, Christmas gifts, or any other goods at one hundred times that of any equal size space in the store.

"A story in figures:

"A given store 25 x 100 has 2500 square feet of floor space; two windows 5 x 10, 100 square feet window space. This window space is 1-25 of total space. The rental is $100. Average cost of every hundred feet of space is $4. Thus the window space on the average is worth $4 as against $96 for the rest of the store. Actually the window space is worth $80 to $20 for the rest of the store.

"This is for retail stores in the smaller cities. Why, then, don't we have better windows, and why don't we take better care of the windows we have?

"On the hundred point basis of influence, newspaper advertising is ten, the window the other ninety; road advertising is ten, the window the other ninety; novelty advertising is ten, the window is the other ninety.

"I am not an advertising sharp, but this is the way I have sized it up as applying to retail stationery stores in small towns."

A BOOK-BINDING EXHIBIT.

FOR three weeks, beginning on December 7, an Exhibition of the Arts and Crafts will be held at the National Arts Club, 119 East 19th Street, New York City, and will be open morning and afternoon. Among the exhibits will be one of book bindings, showing examples not only of the finished work, but work in process. There will be demonstrations by members of the club showing various processes.

COLLIER AND NAST BUY THE HOUSEKEEPER.

ROBERT J. COLLIER, the proprietor of Collier's, and Condé Nast, publisher of Vogue and one of the publishers of House and Garden and Travel, finally announced Tuesday that they had purchased the Housekeeper, a monthly periodical, hitherto published in Minneapolis. Beginning with the March issue it will be published from New York under the firm name of Collier and Nast, and will conform to the editorial and advertising policies of Collier's.

COMMUNICATIONS.

BOOK PRICES CURRENT.

NEW YORK, December 6, 1910.

To the Editor of The Publishers Weekly.

WITH interest I read the communication signed "One of Them" re—the "Book Prices Current," which appears in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY of December 3.

There is undoubtedly much dissatisfaction among the better informed bookmen regarding this publication.

It hurts their business in more ways than one, both in buying and selling, and what is even more exasperating, it gives for a few dollars per annum the knowledge which has taken them many years to obtain to any who can afford to purchase a copy of the work. In travelling in distant parts of the country I have been struck with surprise in many instances to find second-hand furniture dealers and junkmen possessors of the publication. In such cases it is an utter impossibility to do any business with this class of merchant. He or they imagine that because a copy of a book sold for a high figure in a sale of much importance that their copies [often in inferior condition] must be worth at least as much. The most distressing thing about the publication of "Book Prices Current" is however, the fact that it is compiled by one of the profession, he thereby doing inestimable damage to his own friends. The auctioneers are by no means [as seems to be the general impression] anxious to have the prices realized in their salesrooms listed; but they are compelled to do so, or at any rate cannot help themselves in the matter, as the prices can be secured by the compiler without their assistance. As regards the prices listed, they are as much a guide to the dealer who knows his business as a German dictionary is to the student of Spanish.

The writer has spent many years in the second-hand book business, but has never yet subscribed to this work, and will never do so. Any bookman who is worthy of the name should know the values of his wares without the assistance of a guide of this character.

I feel strongly in this matter, and am pleased to see that some one has at last taken the initiative to at least attempt to curb this growing evil.

There is but one way to get around this, and that is to do as I have done, and carry on business without these "aids" to book values.

OSCAR WEGELIN.

OBITUARY NOTES.

CHARLES J. BELLAMY, founder and publisher of the Springfield Daily News, died last Monday, aged fifty-nine. He was born at Chicopee Falls, and was admitted to the bar in 1876. In 1880 he founded the Daily News. Mr. Bellamy was the author of several books, and the late Edward Bellamy, author of "Looking Backward," was a brother.

DR. EMIL REICH, author and lecturer on history, died December 11. He was born at Eperjes, Hungary in 1854, studied at Prague and Budapest and was graduated from Vienna University. He spent many years in the leading libraries of Europe, and, finding books unsatisfactory, he determined to travel so as to complement the study of books with the study of realities. He spent five years in the United States, four years in France, and for the greater part of the last fourteen years he lived in England. Dr. Reich lectured at Oxford, Cambridge and London universities, and represented England in the Venezuelan boundary dispute. He wrote extensively on literature, art and travels, some of his works including "A History of Civilization," "History of Hungarian Literature," "Handbook of Geography," "Atlas of Modern History," "Fundamental Principles of Evidence," "Imperialism," "Failure of the Higher Criticism of the Bible," "General History of Western Nations" and "Plato."

PERIODICAL NOTES.

THE headquarters of the House Beautiful Magazine have been moved from Chicago to New York. The new offices will be located at 315 Fourth Avenue.

THE Pittsburgh Morning Post and the Evening Sun, owned by the same company, have been placed in the hands of a receiver. The Post and Sun were the only Democratic papers in Western Pennsylvania, but have frequently been accused of not hewing along strictly Democratic lines.

THE San Francisco Sun, the one-cent daily, which made its appearance in September, has suspended publication. The Sun was San Francisco's first one-cent newspaper venture. The chief cause of its death seems to have been the fact that it was on the wrong side of the political campaign this year.

THE Red Book Magazine for January will contain as its leading literary feature George Bernard Shaw's latest play, "The Dark Lady of the Sonnets," in which Shaw introduces the "dark lady" of the Shakespeare legend, Shakespeare himself and Queen Elizabeth. The play is in many respects one of the cleverest things Shaw has ever written.

OF most interest to publishers perhaps in the December issue of Printing Art is Harry Lyman Koopman's article on "The Typography of Text and Comment," illustrated with early examples. The leading article of the issue is one on "The Watermarking of Papers," by Sidney A. Kimber, illustrated by examples of English, Italian and American watermarks, reproduced in half-tone and color. Also, "A Plea for Old Types," by William Henry Baker; and "Architectural Illustration," and Christmas card forms and displays.

WITH the appearance of the Political Science Quarterly for December, 1910, this standard review completes its twenty-fifth year of existence. The one hundredth number, like the first, appears under the managing editorship of Professor Munroe Smith, of Columbia University. Professor F. J. Goodnow, who contributed an article to the first number, furnished the first article in this issue, "The Legislative Power of Congress under the Judicial Article of the Constitution." The rest of the number is rich in interest, among the articles being: "The Mortgage Recording Tax," "Agrarian Changes in the Middle West," "A Neglected Factor in Race Suicide," "Radical Democracy in France," and "The Reconstruction of Korea."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MRS. KATHARINE CECIL THURSTON, whose latest novel, "Max," was published last fall, is the only child of Paul Madden, mayor of Cork, and was born in that town.

EDWIN LEFEVRE, author of the novel "Sampson Rock of Wall Street," sailed this week for Spain, where he goes with a unique distinction—as Minister from the Republic of Panama, accredited to both Spain and Italy.

RICHARD and Cherry Kearton, the famous English naturalists and nature photographers, will publish through Cassell & Company in January "Kearnton's Nature Pictures." The remarkable achievements of the Keartons in this direction are well known to naturalists throughout the English-speaking world; and this new work will contain hundreds of their finest nature studies, including twenty-four plates in full color and seventy-two full-page Rembrandt photogravures.

OROTO WATANNA, whose new book, "Tama," was published this month, is the daughter of a Japanese mother and an English father. She was born in Nagasaki, Japan, but has spent much of her life in the United States, for a time doing journalistic work in Chicago. The peculiar quality of her work suggests the query whether any writer of pure English descent can fully interpret the Japanese. Lafcadio Hearn, it will be remembered, was of Greek and Irish parentage.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

MISS L. M. MONTGOMERY, author of the "Anne of Green Gables" stories, has given her publishers, L. C. Page & Co., the title of her next book, "The Story Girl," which will be published in the spring.

MRS. CLARA LOUISE BURNHAM's play, "The Right Princess," based on her successful novel of that title, is to be given its first performance at a special matinee at the Bijou Theatre, New York City, on January 6.

PROFESSOR ISAAC T. HEADLAND's collection of "Chinese Mother Goose Rhymes," done into English by his facile pen, is being issued this month by Revell in a new and very attractive illustrated form.

THE ELECTRICAL TESTING LABORATORY, 80th Street and East End Avenue, New York City, have got out an attractive little book descriptive of their facilities for paper testing, with illustrations of their paper testing laboratory and a resumé of the methods employed.

WE are asked to announce that an authentic biography of Thomas Love Peacock is now in preparation by his granddaughter, Mrs. Charles Clarke, who would regard it a favor if any persons possessing unpublished letters by Peacock would communicate with her at No. 63 Kensington Mansions, Earl's Court, London, W.

"PHOEBE AND ERNEST," by Inez Haynes Gillmore, which has been attracting delighted attention as a serial in the American Maga- zine, promises to be equally successful in book form. The publishers, Henry Holt & Company, report that they are already printing a second edition.

DR. WILLIAM S. SADLER, author of "The Science of Living," and "The Cause and Cure of Colds," has in preparation a new book which will appear in the spring, entitled "The Physiology of Faith and Fear." It deals with a practically new branch of hygiene, the application to sane living of physiological psychology, and it treats the subject from an entirely new standpoint.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY have just published "The Singing Mouse Stories," by Emerson Hough, in which the author of "The Purchase Price" relates his fireside phantasies; and "The Unlived Life of Little Mary Ellen," by Ruth McEnery Stuart, a quaintly pathetic tale of mother love, with the scene laid in Simkinsville, the village setting of so many of her stories. The pages are decorated and there is a frontispiece.

FRANCIS ARNOLD COLLINS, who wrote "The Boys' Book of Model Aëroplanes," has, himself, worked out all the fine points of the models he describes—gliders, monoplanes, biplanes, etc. There are over fifty illustrations from photographs and working diagrams, and the latter half of the book tells the story of the history and development of the science of aviation. The third printing of this book by the Century Co. is just ready.

RICHARD G. BADGER has ready "My Grandmother's Garden and an Orchard Ancestral," by Mary Matthews Bray, two charming nature papers about a Cape Cod garden and orchard; and W. R. Dunham's "Science of Human Life," which the sub-title describes as the world's postponed problem, the operative plan of vital force; vital power being the only active principle, active medical principle being a delusion, and the vital power providing for a more successful management of disease.

BURTON E. STEVENSON is arranging for Henry Holt & Company a collection of English and American verse, in which, while standard poems will be prominent, unusual emphasis will be laid upon the work of contemporary American writers and upon the lighter forms of verse. Mr. Stevenson is especially desirous of capturing and preserving in authentic form the many fugitive poems which every one admires, but no one can find when he wants them, and will welcome any suggestions as to possible inclusions.

THE publications of the Macmillan Company for the week ending December 10 include "The Cambridge Modern History," volume 12: "The Latest Age" (this volume completes the set); "The Mystery of Golf," by Arnold Haultain; "Missions and Modern Thought," by Professor William O. Carver, of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary; and "Introduction to Philosophy," by Dr. William Jerusalem, of the University of Vienna, translated by Charles F. Sanders, Professor of Philosophy in Pennsylvania College.

SMALL, MAYNARD & COMPANY have recently published two new volumes in the Beacon Biographies, "George Washington," by Worthington Chauncey Ford, and "Benjamin Franklin," by Lindsay Swift, who without descending to levity calls his readers' attention to the humorous side of Poor Richard's character. From the same firm comes "Provença: Poems Selected from Personae, Exultations, and Canzonière," by Ezra Pound, a young American poet whose work has appeared in England, but not before in this country.

WILLY POGANY, whose genius in illustrating was given full scope in T. Y. Crowell & Company's special holiday edition of "The Rubáiyát" last year and again this season in the same firm's "Rime of the Ancient Mariner," has risen very rapidly to a leading position in his profession. Almost unknown before the publication of the earlier volume, he now ranks with Parrish in America and Dulac and Rackham in England. Pogany is by nationality a Hungarian, but he obtained his education in art in Paris, and now resides in London.

FROM the John C. Winston Company we have received "The Mediterranean and Its Borderland," by Joel Cook. Most of the alluring, romantic, and historic countries of the world are situated around the Mediterranean. This new work, in two very handsome volumes, takes the reader over the course of a complete cruise around the Mediterranean from the Azores Islands through the Straits of Gibraltar, visiting Southern Spain and France, The Riviera, Southern Italy, Sicily and the islands of the inland sea, Morocco, Tunis and the inland Moorish towns in Northern Africa, Greece, Constantinople, Asia Minor, Palestine and Egypt.

WESSELS & BISSELL COMPANY have just ready two illustrated gift-books, "An Oberland Châlet," by Edith Elmer Wood, recounting the experience of a party of people who rented a châlet in Switzerland for the summer and lived among the people; and "The Golden Road," a story by Frank Waller Allen, with the spirit of the woods and the river on every page, while something happens now and then that is whimsically adventurous. They have also just issued "Balzac," by Frederick Lawton, author of "The Third French Republic." Mr. Lawton traces the connection between Balzac's life and his novels, many or most of which he considers autobiographical.

A FLAT rate of one cent an ounce for first-class mail matter is proposed by Representative Sheppard, of Texas, in a bill introduced in the House last week. Members of Congress are much interested in reports that Postmaster-General Hitchcock thinks the time is now ripe to inaugurate the one-cent rate. The rate of three cents for each half ounce, which was fixed by the law of 1879, was reduced to two cents a half ounce in 1883, and to the present rate of two cents an ounce in 1885. Many Postmasters-General have discussed the possibility of the installation of the one-cent rate, but the subject has apparently never been so seriously considered as at the present time.

THE BAKER & TAYLOR COMPANY have just ready the "Life of Hiram Paulding, Rear-Admiral, U. S. N.," by his daughter, Rebecca Paulding Meade, who tells of the gallant deeds of a brave man from the time when a boy of thirteen he was appointed a midshipman, fighting in the War of 1812, against the Algerian pirates, through the Civil War, until his death in 1878 at the age of eighty-one. "South African Folk-Tales," by James A. Honey, M.D., has also just been published. The stories are mainly Bushmen tales, though some are perverted types from what were originally Bushmen tales, but have been taken over by Hottentots or Zulus, while a few are Dutch. All will be found interesting either by children or students of folk-lore.

LITTLE, BROWN & COMPANY have sent us "Starting in Life; What Each Calling Offers Ambitious Boys and Young Men," by Nathaniel C. Fowler, Jr., illustrated by Charles Copeland and by photographs, a new edition of an already popular book; and "Smoky Day's Wigwam Evenings: Indian Stories Retold," by Charles A. Eastman and Elaine Goodale Eastman. With the approach of Christmas the popularity of Mary E. Waller's new novel, "Flamsted Quarries," is reflected in the reorders which Little, Brown & Co. are receiving. Before the large third edition had left the bindery a fourth edition was ordered to press, and arrangements have been completed for English publication in January. Many applications have already been received for the dramatic rights.

THREE volumes of poetry and a novel have just been issued by Sherman, French & Company. "Cactus and Pine," by Sharlot M. Hall, is, as the sub-title says, a collection of songs of the Southwest, singing of the Santa Fé Trail, Colorado, the desert, and all the wonderful country out there; "The Lure of Life: Lyrics of the 'Zeitgeist,'" is by Oliver Opp-Dyke, author of "The Unfathomable Sorrow," etc.; "The Garden of Grey Ledge and Other Poems," by Charlotte Williams Hazlewood, songs on many themes. The novel is "The Bainbridge Mystery," by Grace Tyler Pratt, a story told in the first person by the housekeeper for David Mader, about the old man's murder the night of her arrival and the following of many clues before the real criminal is found in a most surprising manner.

IN an arcade in the new Pennsylvania station, New York City, Doubleday, Page & Company have opened a complete retail bookstore, where not only their own publications, but others as well may be found on sale; a quiet little corner which aims to change the usual monotony of the traveller waiting for his train into quiet moments of browsing among delightful book friends. "A book in the hand is worth two in the shop." Among their latest books is a "Guide to the Mushrooms," by Emma L. Taylor Cole, with illustrations from photographs by A. W. Cole, in which will be found much information in compact form concerning the various kinds of mushrooms edible and unedible. The volume is small enough to slip into a pocket and can be easily carried on a mushroom gathering expedition.

A. C. McCLURG & COMPANY have ready "In Town, and Other Conversations," by Janet Ayer Fairbank. Under the title of "The Tea Table" the "conversations" have appeared this year in the Chicago Sunday Record-Herald, where they have attracted much favorable attention. The same characters appear on each occasion, and the talk is concerned with topics of the moment, handled in an amusing and highly natural manner. Among these pertinent subjects are "In Town," "The Pursuit of Pleasure," "The American Husband," "Modern Fiction," "Conservation," "Country Life," "The Sane Fourth," "Debutantes," "Young Love," and ten or fifteen others. The illustrations are from pencil drawings of uncommon delicacy by Rebecca Krutchnitt, and the book is printed and bound with an exceptional smartness typical of its contents.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN COMPANY have published "Speeches in Stirring Times," by Richard H. Dana, Jr., author of "Two Years Before the Mast," and one of the most distinguished publicists of his time. The work is edited, with introductory sketch and notes, by Richard H. Dana, 3d. Mr. Dana was born in 1815 and died in 1882, so that his life covered some of the most thrilling years of our history. Besides the speeches there are "Letters to a Son," which will prove not the least interesting part of the volume. The publication of the following books announced by Houghton Mifflin Co. for this season have been unavoidably postponed until next year: "Copyright," by R. R. Bowker; "Public Ownership of Telephones on the Continent of Europe," by Arthur N. Holcombe; "Socialism," by Oscar D. Skelton; and "Industrial Accidents and Their Compensation," by Gilbert L. Campbell.

AMONG the very attractive books on the Frederick A. Stokes Company's list are "Favorite Operas from Mozart to Mascagni; their Plots, History and Music," by J. Cuthbert Hadden, with 24 drawings in color by Byam Shaw; "Old Kensington Palace and Other Papers," charming essays by Austin Dobson; "Unfrequented France by River and Mead and Town," by Miss Betham-Edwards, with many illustrations from photographs; three books in the County Coast Series: "The Norfolk and Suffolk Coast," by W. A. Dutt; "The South Devon and Dorset Coast," by Sidney Heath; and "The Cornwall Coast," by Arthur L. Salmon; "The Argentine Republic," by A. Stuart Pennington, treating of the physical features, history, fauna, flora, geology, literature and commerce of the country; "Historical Vignettes," by Bernard Capes; "Prehistoric Man," by Joseph McCabe, the latest addition to the Twentieth Century Science Series; "The Book of Cupid," an anthology from the English poets, with 23 illustrations by Lady Lytton and an introduction by Henry Newbolt; four new books in the Masterpieces of Color Series: "Murillo," by S. L. Bensusan; "Watts," by W. Loftus Hare; "Ingres," by A. J. Finberg; and "Hogarth," by C. Lewis Hind; and "Selections from Six Comedies and Six Tragedies" of Shakespeare, with an illustration in color for each selection.

EVER since the first publication in 1888, by the Macmillan Company, of the Honorable James Bryce's "The American Commonwealth," it has held high rank as a study of the political system and social conditions of the United States. Its third edition, which appeared in 1893-4, was carefully revised and new material added. During the past year the author has again gone over the entire work, adding further chapters and on nearly every page making the alterations which signify the difference between observations made twenty years apart. So high has been the reputation of the work that repeated efforts have been made by unauthorized persons to trade upon it by issuing garbled reprints of the first and second uncopyrighted editions. The following chapters of new material have been added: On the Negro Question, which discusses later movements for the industrial education of the negroes, the legislation of southern States tending to disenfranchise them, etc.; one on The New Transmarine Dominion; Further Reflections on the Universities, supplementing the one in the earlier editions. There are also treatments, not in the earlier editions, of such essential topics as: civil service reform, recent tendencies toward the increased use of the referendum and initiative in State legislation, modern forms of municipal administration, government by commission, etc. It is due to Mr. Bryce's position that the people should be protected from purchasing, under the impression that they are buying his latest revision of this great work, a book hopelessly out of date.

IT WORKED WELL.

"How is the new filing system? Success?" asked the agent of the merchant to whom he had sold a "system" a few days before.

"Great!" said the merchant.

"Good!" said the agent, rubbing his hands. "And how is business?"

"Business?" echoed the merchant. "Oh, we have stopped business to attend to the filing system."—San Francisco Star.

IN THE YEAR 2000.

"I TELL you this literary controversy is becoming fierce."

"What literary controversy?"

"Why, over the question which was the best-advertised novel of the twentieth century."

JESSE LYNCH WILLIAMS says that since the publication of his novel, "The Married Life of the Frederic Carrolls," this dialogue between himself and ladies whom he chances to meet is so common as to be monotonous:

"And what is your new book about, Mr. Williams?"

"It aims to tell the truth about marriage."

"O, dear!—I'm so tired of unpleasant books!"

"But this one is not unpleasant."

"Well, then, how can it be true?"

SMOKING, and in particular a brand of Italian cigars known as Toscano—"a kind of stogy one soon learns to fall back upon when the last Havana from home has been puffed away"—was the first subject of conversation when Philip S. Marden, author of "Travels in Spain," met Elihu Vedder, author of "The Digressions of V," in Rome. "It was Vedder," says Mr. Marden, "who insisted on my smoking a toscano with him, under the impression, no doubt, that it would finish me. He little knew that I had been addicted to the habit for a year or more, but I soon convinced him of it by confessing that I often treasured up the unsmoked residue of my toscano to be relighted the next day. Vedder's eyes shot fire. 'The man who would relight a toscano,' he shouted, 'would infallibly smoke a corpse.'"

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

A BIBLIOGRAPHY of works on city construction and city planning has been prepared for the Municipal Art Society which comprises about three thousand cards and is said to be the most comprehensive in this country. It represents months of research by Mrs. M. H. Morgan, the assistant secretary at the Avery Library, at Columbia University; the Lenox and Astor libraries and the library of the Reform Club. The work will be continued and kept complete.

THE Librairie E. Jean Fontaine (Jules Meynial, successor), 30 Boulevard Hausmann, Paris, has just issued "Catalogue de la Collection H. Couderc de Saint-Chamant," consisting of books of the XVIIIth century, de luxe editions of modern illustrated books and unique copies in rich bindings executed from drawings by Adolphe Giraldon. The catalogue has a preface by Henri Vever. The books catalogued were sold on November 28 and 29. The catalogue is illustrated with two borders and nine vignettes by Adolphe Giraldon and twenty-four plates of which six are in color, giving a reproduction of the principal bindings designed by Giraldon. There have been printed 100 numbered copies on Velin d'Arches paper, containing besides the twenty-four plates the Ex Libris of H. Couderc de Saint-Chamant, drawn by Adolphe Giraldon, engraved on wood by Florian and printed in colors. The catalogue without the plates may be had gratis.

Books Wanted

Under this head booktrade subscribers, under their own names, are given five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertisement for books out of print in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding 100 lines a year. If over five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line. Books not out of print, repeated matter, and all advertisements from nonsubscribers cost 10 cents a line. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noticed.

In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY, does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withdrawing their use from irresponsible advertisers, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.

A History <sup>of</sup> the French Academy

By D. MACLAREN ROBERTSON

An original history in English from the Academy's foundation, compendious yet adequate, treating of its General History; of that of its dictionary, an institution of itself; of its Membership (with its composition in three different lists), whose literary achievement is placed under the eye of the reader in brief biographies in a more compact form than anywhere else between two covers, even in French. Shows clearly, also, the relationship between the five great national Academies and the Institute of France, of which the history is sketched in outline.

The authority of its sources, its thoroughness and completeness within its scope, its fund of information and anecdote, should make this book what it aims to be, a permanent work of reference as an authority in English on (in Hallam's phrase) "the most illustrious institution in the annals of polite literature," besides forming for the general reader an agreeable story and for the student an introduction to the French literary and political history of nearly three centuries.

405 pages. Price, $3.00 net. Postage, 15 cents
